Corresponding Fellowship Nomination Form and Guidance

For nomination to Corresponding Fellowship of CORE Academy

1. Introductory Note

The International Core Academy of Sciences and Humanities welcomes nominations for election to Corresponding Fellowship from eligible nominators as outlined below.

Corresponding Fellowship is an elected distinction of CORE Academy, recognising significant contributions to knowledge or the advancement of science, technology, education, the arts, and culture. It honours distinguished individuals through enduring recognition of achievement and permanent membership in the Academy.

Nominations are welcomed across academic, professional, and practical fields, countries, and regions consistent with the Academy's mission, including underrepresented fields. There is no limit to the number of nominations an eligible nominator may submit.

Election to Corresponding Fellowship is subject to the Academy's nomination, peer-review, and approval procedures. Nomination does not guarantee election.

2. Eligibility and Basis for Nomination

Candidates for Corresponding Fellowship should normally demonstrate:

- recognized achievement and standing in their academic, professional, or practical field;
- significant contributions to a field, industry, country, or region, or effective leadership or substantial support for education, research, culture, or other public purposes;
- evidence of the significance and impact of their individual contributions;
- a commitment to the Academy's mission and values;
- willingness and potential to contribute to the Academy's development and international cooperation.

Contributions may include research, artistic creation, engineering, innovation, professional practice, institutional leadership, philanthropy, public service, international cooperation, and talent development. Each nomination is considered in the context of the candidate's field and career.

3. Review and Election Process

CORE Academy follows a nomination-based and peer-reviewed process for the election of Corresponding Fellows. The process normally proceeds as follows:

(1) A candidate is nominated by a Fellow, Corresponding Fellow, or Academic Committee member, or by an individual of recognized academic or professional standing, institution, or organization invited by the Academy to submit nominations.
(2) Nomination materials undergo confidential peer review by existing Fellows and, where appropriate, specialists with relevant academic or professional expertise.
(3) The relevant election committee evaluates the nominee's achievements, professional standing, contributions, and overall suitability for Corresponding Fellowship.
(4) The candidate is elected by a majority vote of the relevant committee members participating in the election process.
(5) The election result is then submitted to the Executive Board for confirmation.
(6) Upon confirmation, a formal invitation is issued on behalf of the Academy. Corresponding Fellowship becomes effective upon the nominee's acceptance of the invitation.

All candidates are assessed against the same applicable criteria, irrespective of the nomination route. Nominations received after a cycle's cut-off date may be carried forward to a subsequent cycle.

4. Possible Outcomes

Following review, one of the following outcomes may arise:

(1) Election to Corresponding Fellowship of CORE Academy; or
(2) Non-election in the current cycle.

If a nomination is not successful in the current cycle, the nominator may resubmit the candidate in a subsequent election cycle.

Where appropriate, and depending on the nominee's career stage, profile, or achievements, the Academic Committee or Executive Board may recommend consideration for another category of recognition or membership, subject to the applicable criteria and procedures.

5. Confidentiality and Declaration of Interest

All nominations and supporting materials will be treated as confidential and used solely for the Academy's review and election process, including any confidential consultation required for academic or professional assessment.

Nominators, reviewers, and members involved in the assessment process are expected to disclose any significant conflict of interest, close professional collaboration, institutional connection, supervisory relationship, or personal relationship that may reasonably be seen as affecting impartial judgment.

6. Required Nomination Materials

Each nomination should include the following:

A. Nominee Information

(1) Full name of nominee

(2) Current academic or professional title

(3) Current institutional affiliation

(4) Country or region

(5) Nominee's corresponding email

(6) Proposed academic division / field(s) / area(s) of expertise

B. Nominator Information

(1) Full name of nominator

(2) Nominator status and affiliation (membership number optional)

(3) Corresponding email

(4) Signature (handwritten or valid electronic signature)

C. Nomination Statement

A nomination statement of approximately 600–1200 words is normally recommended, though longer statements may be accepted where necessary. The statement should normally address:

- the nominee's academic, professional, creative, or practical career;
- the nominee's principal achievements and significant contributions, including their individual role;
- the significance and impact of those contributions within the field, and where relevant, at the national, regional, or international level;
- the nominee's broader contributions to education, leadership, institution-building, mentorship, innovation, culture, public service, or international cooperation, including alignment with the Academy's mission.

(Not every nomination will address all of the above in equal detail. Nominators should focus on the aspects most relevant to the nominee's field, career profile, and principal contributions.)

D. Supporting Materials and Additional Information (Optional)

Where available and appropriate, nominators are encouraged to provide supporting materials that may assist the Academy's review. These may include:

- a brief proposed citation summarizing the nominee's principal achievements and grounds for nomination;
- a selected list of significant publications, creative works, inventions, innovations, projects, or other representative achievements relevant to the nomination;
- the nominee's latest curriculum vitae;
- links to the nominee's official homepage, institutional or professional profile, Google Scholar, ORCID, or equivalent profile; and/or
- other relevant supporting information, including major honours, awards, academy memberships, patents, exhibitions, performances, or evidence of institutional development or public benefit.

7. Submission

Please send the completed nomination materials to:

Academic Committee, International Core Academy of Sciences and Humanities
